BUILDING ON A LEGACY

Village Farms Davis: Deep Roots. Proven Stewardship. Lasting Commitment.

- Led by seven multigenerational Davis families whose roots span more than 50 years
- Families of farmers, educators, builders, and civic leaders who helped shape Davis

Pioneers of Sustainability — Before It Was a Buzzword

- Leaders in environmentally responsible development since the 1970s
 - Helped create major portions of Davis's bike path system
- Among the first to integrate greenbelts and wildlife habitat into neighborhoods
- Founded one of the region's first solar energy companies & recognized for environmental leadership
- Developed what was once the largest solar-powered apartment community in the U.S.

Builders of Community — Not Just Homes

- Founders and supporters of iconic institutions like the Davis Farmers Market
- Key contributors to the U.S. Bicycling Hall of Fame; Avid supporters of arts, education, & youth sports
- Decades of service on city boards, commissions, and community organizations

Still Here. Still Giving Back.

- Children and grandchildren born and raised in Davis
- Coaching youth sports, serving on school committees, volunteering locally
- Actively addressing today's challenges — housing, homelessness, food security

Why This Matters

- These families know Davis — its values, its history, and its future
- Village Farms Davis reflects a multigenerational commitment to community wellbeing
 - This is not speculation — it's a track record

A Legacy of Giving. A Community Built Together.

These families have poured their time, energy, and resources into our community. The logos below represent just a few of the hundreds of organizations they've supported — lives touched, ideas realized, and a legacy of giving back.
